

The Michelin Vintage Tyre Range Returns to Australia

From May, the highly popular Michelin Vintage car tyre range will be available in Australia.

Featuring the Michelin Classic and Historic Competition tyre ranges, the new arrangement will give vintage car owners easier access to approximately 90 products. The first dealer to receive the tyres will be Stuckey Tyre Service.

Michelin Australia Managing Director, Cedric Binoit said the move was prompted by increasing demand for the product in Australia.

“Michelin is pleased to be able to offer this highly popular range again to our Australian customers,” said Mr Binoit.

“Through Stuckey Tyre Service we are providing easier access and improved service to vintage car owners looking to fit Michelin tyres to their prized vehicles. Not only will they be able to keep the original look and feel of their vehicle, they will also benefit from improved safety and performance

“Tyre safety and performance have come a long way since these cars were first manufactured, but thanks to continuous innovation and technological leadership from Michelin, these tyres benefit from the progress made in performance. However, the visual characteristics of these tyres remain consistent with those of the vehicles of time.”

Michelin Vintage offers a range of tyres for classic cars which will fit a number of vehicles made between the 30s and the end of the 70s.

Made in small production runs, often by hand, these tyres call on the technical skills and the know-how of the finest craftsmen.

The technological excellence of this range goes hand in hand with the historical authenticity of the vehicles. These tyres reproduce the exact configuration of the model of the time in terms of size, tread pattern and aspect ratio thereby ensuring the vehicle remains entirely in keeping with the period.

Michelin, by offering tyres which are both safe and historically accurate, aim to safeguard, promote, and expand motoring heritage.
